SENT DEPARTMENT 392 REPEATED INFO PARIS 91 LONDON 72 FRANKFORT 30.

In conversation today with Embassy political officer, Loridans said that, while he did not expect that Stalin would decide now on a general war, Belgian Government regarded prospects of forthcoming trouble in Germany with some foreboding. He said present defenseless state of FEDREP was even more inviting than situation of South Koreans and he feared that an attack by East Germans on West Germans would be very tempting to Kremlin.

Questioned whether Belgian Government would object to Atlantic Powers providing Federal German police with proper military equipment and reinforcements, Loridan responded in emphatic negative.
